

UNITED TRIBES
TECHNICAL COLLEGE
TEACHER EDUCATION

United Tribes Technical College (UTTC) was awarded a teacher training grant entitled the Project SAGE by the Office of Special Education Programs. The purpose of this project is to increase the number of highly qualified teachers certified in Elementary Education and Special Education. Upon completion of the program, the project participants, referred to as scholars, will be eligible for North Dakota teacher licensure in Elementary Education with coursework for an endorsement in Special Education.

Twenty (20) full-time scholars will be selected to begin coursework in Spring/Summer 2015 for the bachelor degree program of study. Potential candidates must have a complete application packet before they will be considered for selection (the components of the application packet are detailed in this information). The final selection criteria for the project will be completed by select UTTC faculty and the project director. Preference for selection will be given to applicants who have already completed a two-year degree or a considerable number of credits within the past five years.

Project SAGE allows for student financial support of at least $3,000 per semester and considerable professional development opportunities. Participants are encouraged to seek financial aid funding sources early. In order to continue participation in the project, participants must maintain a minimum 2.75 GPA, as well as fulfill other project requirements.

Guide to Writing Your Philosophy of Education

The whole notion of writing your personal philosophy of education may make your heart pump rapidly and find you questioning how one should even get started in this process. Below are guidelines to provide you support and resources that can present you assistance. Keep in mind that as you continue on with your studies and have more experiences within the education environments your philosophy of education will change. To provide a user-friendly (and less stressful) guide you will write your philosophy of education in four parts. In your essay, you should indicate (in a few paragraphs for each section) the following:

---

Section 1) what you believe is real (your ontology) about:

- ♦the nature of learners
- ♦your role as a teacher
- ♦schools
- ♦the role of others (administrators, parents, etc.)

Start your responses with I believe....

For example, do you believe that all students are capable of learning? Do the students in a classroom have something to contribute, or is it the teacher who is the primarily source of contributions? How do you believe that children learn best, through lecture, hands-on activities, a blend of methods, or through preselected district approved textbooks? What role should parents, administrators, and/or other members of society do to participate in the education of youth? Or do you believe that formal education should rely solely on teachers?

Section 2) what you value and the goals associated with those values (your axiology) about:

Start your responses with I value or my goal is to....

For example, what purpose does education have within our society and world? Are you focusing on their economic imprint, societal expectations, cultural presence, or controlling the education that takes place in your classroom by following the state standards? How will you determine what should and shouldn't be taught to students? What do you expect children to gain knowledge of under your guidance? What are your behavioral expectations of your students? What rules will you enforce in the classroom? If a rule is broken, what will be the consequences?

Section 3) what methods you expect to utilize to accomplish your educational goals for your future students (an epistemology):

Start your responses with I will...

For example, to provide new knowledge/skills to your students what method(s) will you use; lectures-direct instruction, cooperative learning groups, using problem-solving techniques, use ability grouping, etc. How will these help you accomplish your goals in providing an education to your students? Have you read or experienced something that supports your belief? How will you set up your learning environment to encourage and support learning?

Section 4) Finally, in keeping with the Teacher Education slogan, you should bring to a close your philosophy of education paper by explaining how your philosophy reflects the theme "Creating Competent, Caring Teachers" by identifying teacher dispositions that effective teachers should possess.

For example, what teacher dispositions are a must to possess to be an effective educator? What traits of effective teachers will you possess and role model to your students?

Dear Dr. Azure:

First paragraph: Introduce yourself and include pertinent information about your past education and experience and how you found the information for the project.

Second and third paragraphs: Give a more complete explanation of the college degree you have completed or are currently completing. Use professional vocabulary and phrasing. Make this an interesting letter to read. Be confident in your experience and knowledge and build a case for how you can be an asset to this project.
